

Peoples <sup>Worthy</sup> Mission

I know you guys are still laughing at the thought of Lacey and me chopping up chickens. I truly did appreciate how we were treated while we volunteered there. I'll admit at first thought of going to the mission I was a little worried. It was something new and different to me and I wasn't too sure what to expect. I am so thankful that the mission is where I completed my hours.

I had such a good time while I was there. I really enjoyed working with your kitchen staff and they made me feel completely at ease. I loved feeling like I was actually helping out and I think what those involved with the mission are doing is truly great. I also learned while I was there. I'm so glad I got to be a part of helping out.

I think it's amazing that you don't just hand people things. Actually making them have a share gives them a feeling of self worth plus it gets work done around there. I do for sure want to go back and help out again. I am so thankful for how I was treated and it really goes a long way to show what kind of goals the mission works towards. It's much more than a place to stay.

Thank You!!!
